HOUSE COLLAPSE IN BOMBAY.

One Man Killed.

About 11 o'clock yesterday morning a four-storeyed house situated in Bazaar Gate Street suddenly collapsed. It belongs to Mr. Vandravandas Laldas Shroff, and was insured against fire. It was occupied by the Pinjrapole of Porebunder, who kept their office on the upper floor while in the ground floor there was a shop rented by a Parsi. The other flats were used by Hindus as residential quarters. When the building began to show signs of falling the inhabitants fortunately were all able to make their escape with the exception of a Brahmin cook.

The Municipal and Police officers were immediately on the spot and when the "debris" was removed the dead body of the Brahmin cook was discovered.

The house contained nearly forty people. The cook was in the kitchen where the first fall occurred A young Hindu named Chunilal was injured.

BOMBAY CORPORATION.

Widening of the Queen's Road.

An adjourned meeting of the Bombay Municipal Corporation was held in the Municipal Council Hall, yesterday afternoon, Dr. K. E. Dadachanji, the President, occupying the chair.

Col. Collie proposed that the report of the committee regarding the question of widening the Queen's Road from Church Gate Street to Wodehouse Bridge be approved and adopted and a copy thereof be forwarded to the Commissioner for information and necessary action. Colonel Collie remarked that the matter was first mooted in 1907 and there was no question as to the desirability of the improvement.

The report has already been published.

The proposition being seconded was agreed to.

THE MINT TANK.

In accordance with previous notice Mr. Shapoorji P. Mistry moved:—"That the Commissioner be requested to report whether it is not a fact that a large quantity of water from a Municipal lake was supplied annually free of charge to the Government Mint Tank from 1868 to 1887 and that a large quantity, not exceeding ten lakhs of gallons a year, has been supplied free of charge to the same Tank since 1887, what was the cause for the supply being free of charge; whether the same cause holds good even now, and if so whether it cannot be got over."

Rao Sahib Vandekar seconded.

Mr. E. M. Proes said that it was true that some damage was done to the Mint Tank. The alleged damage was due to the excavation of a channel close to the tank for flood water or sewage, which caused a leakage from the tank into the channel. A meeting of the Mint and the Municipal officers was held in November 1887, and it was agreed that the Municipality should supply the tank free of charge with a quantity of water not exceeding 10 lakhs of gallons, yearly as compensation for the alleged damage to the Mint Tank caused by the Municipality. Water supplied in excess of 10 lakhs of gallons to be paid for at Government rates.

The proposition was agreed to. This concluded the business before the Corporation.

The model wheat elevator which was exhibited at the Lahore Exhibition has been loaned to the U. P. Exhibition. After return the elevator will be taken for practical demonstration purposes throughout the wheat growing districts of the Punjab in order to familiarise people with its working.

HIGH COURT.

DWARKADASS' BUILDINGS.

On the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, before the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beaman, the Hon'ble Mr. Jinnah, instructed by Messrs. Thakurdass and Company, moved that the suit brought by Mr. Shapoorji R. Broacha against Rajoo Babaji for being put in possession of Dwarkadass' certain properties in Princess Street be restored to the file.

The suit came on for hearing before the same learned Judge when the parties came to a settlement by which the defendant was to give possession of the properties in question on the plaintiff paying him Rs. 25,000.

Mr. Jinnah, in support of his motion, said there had been some misunderstanding at the time when the settlement was arrived at

Mr. Setalwad, instructed by Messrs. Bhaishankar, Kanga and Girdharlal, for the defendant, consented.

His Lordship ordered accordingly, the suit to be put first on his Lordship's board for Monday, subject to a part-heard suit, costs to be costs in the cause.

MORTGAGE DISPUTE.

On the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Robertson delivered judgment in an appeal from a decision of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beaman who had passed a decree for the plaintiff Hoorbai against the second defendant Mauji Karimbhai in respect of certain properties mortgaged to Mauji.

The facts of the case have already been reported.

The Chief Justice in delivering the judgment of the Court, held that Hoorbai's suit was not maintainable and that the defendant was a bona-fide mortgagee.

Their Lordships, accordingly, reversed the decree of the Lower Court and dismissed the suit.

MARWARI SENT TO GAOL.

Fraudulent Execution of Decrees.

The Subordinate Judge of Talegaon, Mr. T. R Kotwal, recently sent a Marwari merchant to take his trial under Section 193 and 210 of the Penal Code before the First Class Magistrate, Mr. L. J. Sidgwick, as the merchant had not entered a payment of money received from the debtor in the application for execution of the decree. A receipt was passed to the debtor and he produced it at an enquiry held by the Judge. The proceedings were taken under Section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

The Magistrate examined the Subordinate Judge and also the plaintiff's pleader as witnesses. The Subordinate Judge stated that he had noted about twelve such cases and he now thought an example should be made in order to stop the practice. The accused was represented by a pleader.

The Magistrate convicted the accused merchant Kapoorchand Maganiram under Section 210 of I. P. C. and fined him Rs. 40, or in default, to suffer a simple imprisonment for four days.

PRIVILEGE OF COUNSEL.

The obiter dicta of Mr. Justice Beaman in the judgment of his Lordship in the recent Commercial Gymkhana case as regards the duties and obligations of Counsel to Court in the discharge of their duty to their client, involves principles of law not quite well-known to the lay public. In October last year there was delivered an important Full Bench Judgment of the Court of the Judicial Commissioners, Sind, consisting of Mr. H. N. Crouch, Mr. R. Knight and Mr. A. Lucas where the professional conduct of a Pleader was the subject of enquiry. In delivering their judgment the Judicial Commissioners laid down the broad principle of law on this interesting question, which we give below:—

The present Law in England, with regard to the privilege of Counsel is thus described by Dr. Blake Odgers, "No action will lie against a barrister for defamatory words spoken as Counsel in the course of any judicial proceedings with reference thereto, even though they were, unnecessary to support the case of his client and were uttered without any justification or excuse, and from personal ill-will towards the plaintiff arising from some previously existing cause, and are irrelevant to every question of fact which is in issue before the tribunal "(Odgers on Libel and Slander, 4th edition 1905, p 226).

In the course of his judgment in the leading case of Munser vs. Lamb (11 Q. B. D. 58) Bret M. R. has explained the reason why this wide liberty has been given to Counsel. It owes its origin to the very real mischief which could result if Counsel could not speak freely. The privilege exists not for the benefit of unscrupulous Counsel, but for the public good. It is, of course, not for the public benefit that persons should be slandered without having a remedy, but upon striking a balance between convenience and inconvenience, between benefit and mischief to the public, it is thought better that Counsel, like a Judge, should not be subject to fear for the consequence of anything which he might say in the course of his duty. A Counsel has special need to have his mind clear of all anxiety; his position is one of the utmost difficulty, " he is not called upon to consider whether the facts with which he is dealing are true or false. What he has to do is to argue as best he can, without degrading himself, in order to maintain the proposition which will carry with it either the protection or the remedy which he desires for his client. If amidst the difficulties of his position he were called upon during the heat of his argument to consider whether what he says is true or false, whether what he says is relevant or irrelevant he would have his mind so embarrassed that he could not do the duty which he is called upon to perform." (see Munster vs Lamb, p.p. 603. 604).

Setalvad, Fourth Presidency Magistrate at the Mazagon Police Court, Mr. Mahomed Husein Taki, of the Detective Police, applied for a proclamation being issued against Bachubai, a Hindu woman and Jivanlal Kanji and Bapulal Chunilal. These persons were concealing themselves and the warrants issued against them for cheating in respect of Rs. 13,500 and Rs. 2,500 could not be executed.

The Magistrate granted the application, and ordered proclamations to be issued against them.

Much indignation, says a Cairo correspondent, has been created in Moslem circles by the publication of an article in the American Mission Review "El Murchid" attacking Islam. The article was culled from an English book called "The Cross and the Crescent." A considerable amount of agitation has ensued, and protests have been forwarded to the Regent by a number of Moslem notables demanding the suppression of the review, while the native Press, citing the case of Sheikh Shawish, who was recently sentenced to imprisonment on account of a preface to a book written by him, calls for the arrest of the editor of the review. Although no official notice has been taken of the matter the American Mission, realising the acute situation unwittingly created, has decided voluntarily to cease publication of the Review, which has been in existence for eighteen years.

SOUTH AFRICAN POLITICS.

GENERAL BOTHA does not seem so happy in the prospect of being first Premier of the United South African Union as before the elections. He feels the country is not behind him. As a matter of fact he is not with his Ministers, for they are anything but a united camp. Hertzogism, that is to say, the educational policy, which means racialism and separatism, divides them—as it is bound to do for years to come, until indeed there shall be one official language, and that the English language, throughout South Africa. Under General Hertzog's educational policy British school teachers are at a disadvantage as compared with Dutch and must sign a disqualifying certificate involving loss of pay in case they are unacquainted with the Dutch language. Dutch teachers in South Africa are all of necessity familiar with the English tongue, but Dutch is bound to lapse in the course of years, and to continue bi-lingual teaching is an absurdity. Concessions were made too soon and too generously to our late enemies, and they have been given the power to obstruct the progressive policy of the Government to which they owe their advancement. General Hertzog, who is responsible for the Educational policy of the new Ministry, is to be its Minister of Justice—"Small wonder," observes a South African correspondent, "that those who are true to British ideals and traditions and who desire a real union and allegiance to Imperialism are gravely apprehensive, of what the future may hold." General Botha, who now seems to have lost heart, made many appeals for co-operation, declared that if there was one question which should be kept outside the domain of party politics, it was education, and he deplored the separatist school movement. Mr. Burton, a member of General Botha's Cabinet publicly stated that he was as tired of the word Hertzogism as he had been of the word Krugerism. But, observes the Cape Times, "it is not a word, but the thing which is nauseous and nauseating, and Mr. Burton may depend upon it that South Africa will not agree to drop the word until the thing is as definitely abandoned as the various objectionable things once indicated by the term Krugerism." General Hertzog's policy is generally considered by all English colonists to have aroused racial animosity, retarded education and robbed the Free State of valued and efficient public servants.

With regard to this policy, as we have stated, Ministers are at variance. General Botha does not approve of it. He has implored the originators of the movement for separate schools in the Free State to stay their hand in the interests of what he calls co-operation ; but says the Cape Times these people are convinced that at the end of five years, with Hertzogism unvetoed and even unchecked, as the Prime Minister says is inevitable, by the Union Parliament, there will scarcely be an English teacher left in the Free State. How, asks our contemporary, can the Prime Minister expect parents who will suffer from this sort of thing to be consoled by the reflection that they are co-operating? General Hertzog, by the way, has publicly declared that he and his colleagues are determined that their policy shall not only triumph in the Free State, but be extended to every province in South Africa. In the face of this determination, we fear, the Prime Minister cannot possibly hope for the success of his non-racial ideas. He declares that his policy is not that of the Free State and would have the people believe that he will do his utmost to thwart it, but his colleagues are satisfied that in this matter the resources of constitutionalism are exhausted and there is no possibility of undoing the mischief which has been wrought.

At the same time there are obstacles in the path of General Hertzog. Bi-lingual teachers are not nearly so plentiful as is necessary to carry out his scheme. The Director of Education in the Transvaal, the other day, drew attention to a report by one of his Inspectors which stated that in his circuit in English there was no improvement, but many evidences of deterioration. "Less time is given to English," he wrote, "surprisingly few farm school teachers really are able to write correct questions upon the reading matter of the first, second and third standard readers. How," he asks, "can one expect great progress from the scholar? My constant experience is that ability to read English is no more guarantee of ability to use it. And I am every day more firmly of opinion that the truly bi-lingual teacher is exceedingly rare. In my circuit I count them on the fingers of one hand. And the number of teachers who read for either pleasure or instruction is lamentably small." Yet the Dutch farmers, with their eyes open to advantages before them, express themselves exceedingly anxious their children should be proficient in English. They know that they will have to compete with those not of their own race and very naturally they lay claim to every means by which they may be so equipped as to fight the battle for existence successfully. The more this idea is impressed upon them the easier it will be to overthrow Hertzogism. But it scarcely seems likely that this can be attempted for at least five years; for General Botha, having begun to doubt that the country is with him, has also made the discovery that his health is not so satisfactory as it might be. Altogether the beginning of the new regime in South Africa is less encouraging that the well-wishers of the Union could desire and it seems as if, after all, Dr. Jameson's suggestion of a Cabinet formed by picked men from both parties would have been the best method of solving the difficulty, and that most likely to produce good and lasting results.

BUDDHISTIC REMAINS AT SAHRIBAHLOL. THE Archæological Survey during the past year resumed the excavation of the Buddhistic remains at Sahribahlol in the Frontier Province, and an interesting account of the operations there appears as an appendix to Dr. Spooner's annual report. That officer was compelled to abandon the work at Shahji-ke-Dheri, which hitherto had principally occupied his attention as the owner of the land would not allow it to continue, except under terms, which were unacceptable. He therefore decided to explore another of the many tumuli in the vicinity of Sahribahlol, and selected one about 250 feet in diameter and about half a mile to the north-west of the village. The results of his preliminary work soon led him to the conclusion that such stupas or other religious structures as had existed on the site, had been on its western side, while the eastern side had been occupied by a monastic quadrangle whose walls were mostly cutcha. Concentrating his attention then on clearing the mound on the western side, he came upon a round stupa base and against this a headless and otherwise damaged Buddha. Another seated Buddha was next discovered somewhat to the south of the first. Originally, Dr. Spooner believes there was a good-sized stone building on this portion of the site and the presence of these two stone Buddhas not far apart pointed to the conclusion that it was once richly decorated with sculptures. It was difficult to determine the exact nature of the structure, but the comparative strength and solidity of the foundations suggested that it was a fairly high and heavy one. The large number of sculptural finds made among its debris near this spot seemed to signify too that it was the main monument of the community. If this was so, it was singular that the main building should have been built of more perishable materials than some of the minor ones, but at the same time he points out that a similar phenomenon was observable in the other mound near Sahribahlol which was excavated three years ago. This building too rose from a well laid stone pavement, while others on a smaller scale were off this pavement, and outside the main centre of the site.

Another important piece of building on the main pavement, showed on its south side portions of a very large and elaborate sculpture, while its eastern face showed a frieze of Buddha figures in stucco between Corinthian pilasters. This was surmounted by a cornice above which had another stone frieze representing apparently legendary scenes from the life of Buddha and on a scale quite exceptional for a building of such small dimensions. The decoration in stucco on this stupa was altogether of an exceptional and highly interesting nature, and it is much to be regretted that so large a proportion of it has perished. From various portions of the tumulus a large quantity of sculptural pieces and fragments were recovered, There were 78 stone fragments in addition to the stucco sculptures which alone form a considerable collection. Of these, notable finds were two colossal figures of Buddha, respectively, 8 feet 6inches and 9 feet 10 inches in height, both of which were in the main uninjured. The most interesting figure sculpture, however, was certainly a large standing figure—probably female—which Dr. Spooner finds it hard to classify, but believes to represent a reigning monarch. "A curious feature of this," he says, "that the figure is represented as holding against its breast a kind of trefoil shrine, which must originally have shown some sacred image, probably a Buddha figure in one of the precious metals. That the image itself is not a sacred figure is practically certain. It is obviously not a monk, from its rich jewellery and its headdress. The most natural explanation, therefore, would seem to be either that it represents some wealthy layman in the community, or some "royal figure" portrayed in the act of worship or symbolically as supporting the church." There was also discovered a head which Dr. Spooner thinks is undoubtedly a striking portrait of a monk, "perhaps the only priest of ancient Buddhism whose features have come down to us in recognizable form." A considerable number of coins were also recovered, of which probably the most important seems to be a large silver coin of the Sassanian typ.e

MARITIME TRADE OF SIND. A VERY remarkable increase in the private foreign exports of Sind was experienced during 1909-10, their volume rising from 867 lakhs in the previous year to 2,224 lakhs or an increase of 156 per cent. This is, of course, accounted for by the excellent harvest of last year, following as it did upon a lean year. The same cause exerted a beneficial effect on the general trade which reached an unprecedented figure of the province. The private import trade, showed a small decrease of a little over 9 per cent, the total falling from 1,190 lakhs to 1,079 lakhs, but in other respects records were created. The total sea-borne trade of the province rose to 4,488 lakhs, an increase of 1,202 lakhs or 36 per cent. The total foreign trade rose to 3,566 lakhs, an increase of 1,104 lakhs, or 44 per cent., and the total foreign coasting trade has increased by Rs. 97 lakhs to Rs. 922 lakhs or 11 per cent. All these figures are record ones, and are five per cent. above those of the last record year 1907-08 and 22 per cent. above those of 1904-05, the previous record year. Good crops generally were experienced, but those which contributed principally to this excellent result were wheat, cotton and rape-seed. On the other hand the small drop in the imports is brought about partly by over-trading in piece-goods in 1908, and partly by the enormous rise in the price of cotton last year, which resulted in a curtailed purchase of cotton goods. The trade of the port of Karachi experienced an increase of 36 per cent., it may be mentioned, while the subordinate ports of Kati Bandar and Sirgards, showed the very substantial increase of 65 per cent. The Chief Collector of Customs commenting on these figures in his annual report remarks that during the year business was undoubtedly difficult both in the import and export trade. Part of the direct import trade was diverted to Bombay, as Bombay was holding enormous stocks, some of which were purchased before the rise in prices and found a ready outlet in Sind. In exports, zemindars held on to their produce in a remarkable way for higher rates, so that forward sales without cover were risky. The chief cause, he goes on to say, in the enormous drop in the cotton textile trade was "the over-trading in 1907-1908, leading to an accumulation of stocks, the goods being bought at high figures. Then followed a sudden drop in rates owing to the fall in cotton and retail buyers having a small sale owing to the small crops of 1907-1908, and expecting still lower rates kept out of the market. Further they were hampered in their trade by having to sell at a loss owing to new goods being cheaper than their previous purchases. Those who were able to bear their losses, and sell and buy new goods were able ro recoup themselves somewhat. In the Summer of 1909 the news came that there was to be a short American crop and short time would have to be more resorted to—it had already been resorted to owing to the poor business passing. Prices then began to rise and rose gradually every month. The year commenced with the prices of fair middling American cotton at 5·27d. per lb. and closed at 8·11d. per lb. December saw 8·49d. and since the close of the year this has again been touched. It will thus be seen that business has been of a very difficult nature. Stocks at the close of the year were decidedly small compared with those of the last three years.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT).

LONDON, AUGUST 31.

THE CZAR IN GERMANY.

The Tsar and Tsarina, with their family, arrived at Friedberg, in Hesse, this afternoon, and were welcomed by the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Hesse at the station. So secret had the time of the arrival of the Russian imperial train been kept that even the detectives on duty did not know it, and had patrolled the station and its precincts for twenty-four hours before the Tsar actually appeared. Last night a suspected anarchist, a Russian named Mandelberg, was arrested at Bad Nauheim, a few miles from Friedberg, where the Tsarina will take her cure. According to one report the Tsarina is in such bad health that she cannot walk unaided.

WEATHER.

According to the records at Glasgow Observatory, the month of August has not only been the wettest since Glasgow statistics were first taken, in 1868, but there have also been the minimum hours of sunshine (65); the next lowest showed 90 hours. Heavy showers fell again yesterday, and crops in many districts are ruined. Flooding this month has been unprecedented. The wind blew with hurricane force in Dublin yesterday, and sadly interfered with the success of the race meeting of the Phœnix Park Club. Torrents of rain had fallen during the night. Many women were to be seen shopping in Grafton and Sackvile streets, with veils fastened right over their heads, and some surprising headgear was worn by men. Driving through the Phœnix Park one experienced the full force of the gale. Here and there trees had been blown across the road, while innumerable boughs of great size lay about in all directions,

FASHIONABLE WEDDING.

The marriage of Lady Dorothy Coventry and Sir Keith Fraser took place this week at Crome Church, Worcestershire, the service being performed by the Rev. H. Coventry and the Rev. H. Bennett. Lord Coventry gave his daughter away, and she had a lovely gown of white satin with an overdress of chiffon and lace, the latter the gift of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Keith Fraser. The bridal procession was a very pretty one, four couples of little boys and girls walking behind the bride, the boys wearing white satin breeches and blue satin coats, and the little girls white muslin and lace frocks with blue sashes. They all wore the gifts of the bride and bridegroom, blue enamel muff chains or blue enamel sleeve-links. After the ceremony Lady Coventry held a reception at Crome Court, which was attended by many members of the families and various friends. Among those present were Prince and Princess Victor-Duleep Singh.

ROYAL ROMANCE.

After six years of waiting the love-story of Princess Clementine of Belgium and Prince Victor, Napoleon, the Imperialist Pretender to the Throne of France, is to come to the proverbial "happy ending." Their marriage, I learn, is now imminent, although the names of the royal witnesses and the place where the ceremony will take place have not yet been disclosed. After the death of King Leopold last winter the betrothal was again mentioned. The young King Albert raised no objection to the union, and ever since the royal lovers have met at various places, and especially at Moncalieri Castle, near Turin, where lives the mother of Prince Victor. The latter has gone Farnborough to make the final arrangements with the Empress Eugenie, who it is well known, is deeply attached to Prince Victor. The Pretender is forty-eight years old and the elder son of the late Prince Napoleon and of his wife Princess Clotilde of Savoy. He is the sole representative of the junior branch of his family as descendant from Jerome, King of Westphalia, the younger brother of the great Napoleon. He is handsome and tall, and has many of the Napoleonic features, but wears a long dark moustache.

WHY MARRIED WOMAN SUCCEED.

The married woman is, on the whole, more successful in business than the average spinster (says Mary Mortimer Maxwell), but the reason of her superiority is not because of the "Mrs.," nor because of the ring, nor because of the ceremony, but because of the broadening effect that married life has has or should have on a woman—and it takes several years of married life to bring about this result. And the broadening takes place whether the marriage is a happy one or an unfortunate one. Indeed, sometimes, the more tragic the marriage, the more it does toward developing a woman's character, and giving her that experience and breadth of view that is so invaluable in a business career.

MOUNTAIN TRAGEDIES.

We have had two very sad tragedies, very unusual in Great Britain, particularly at this time of the year. One was Lady Margorie Erskine whose body has been found in a lonely spot called Eagle's Nest at Aviemore, Inverness-shire, in the heart of the Cairngorm mountains. The discovery was made by a man employed on a local golf course. He had been searching for white heather, and when returning home he came upon the partly decomposed body of a woman lying in the heather at the back of the Craigellachie rock. It is presumed that she sprained an ankle and lay waiting for help. When the cold became intolerable she probably tried to make her way back to Aviemore, dropping her belongs as she went. After going a short distance she collapsed, it is thought, on the rough ground, and expired from exposure. The other victims were father and son. The father being a man of about 60, the son 26 years. On Friday, Mr. Hardy, accompanied by his elder son, set out on a round journey through Carnarvon and Bettws-y-Coed. They lunched at Carnarvon, and thence took train to Llanberis. It was apparently their intention to walk through the famous Llanberis Pass to Roman Bridge station, near Bettws-y-Coed ; hence they could take train to Colwyn Bay. The day proved to be a terrible one for travellers in the open country. The night closed in early, and as dusk came on the men were observed in a blinding hailstorm to be making their way over the wild slopes of Moel Siabod, "the Bald Hill," one of the highest and bleakest places in the Welsh mountains. Here they appear to have lost their way in the blinding storm, and the father, overcome by exposure, sank down on the mountain side and lapsed into unconsciousness, which under the circumstances meant death. The son remained by his father's side for several hours unable to render any help, until he too was overcome and passed away.

SUPERSTITION.

Sir Westman Pearson, one of the new peers, takes his title from the estate of Cowdray Park which he has bought. This property is one of the unlucky ones, it is said, being under a curse. In the Park are theruins of Cowdray House, the scene of one of the most famous "curses." It belonged in the time of Henry VIII. to the nuns of Eastbourne. They were expelled by the representatives of the King, who presented the estate to the Earl of Southampton. The "curse" decreed that the mansion should be first destroyed by water, and afterwards by fire, and that none of the Earl of Southampton's descendants should ever be succeeded by an elder son. After his family died out the estate passed to various other owners, all of whom are said to have been extremely unlucky. Fortunately, the present owner is not superstitious.

A CUMBERLAND LEGEND.

Another story of a "curse," this time by fairies, and one which luckily up to now has not been fulfilled, is that of the "Luck of Edenhall," as the famous glass goblet that is so carefully preserved at Sir Richard Musgrave's Cumberland home is called. "If e'er that cup should break or fall, Farewell the luck of Edenhall." Luckily the cup has never come to harm, but once, years ago, it had a very narrow escape. For the Duke of Wharton dropped it during a drinking bout, and it was just saved from destruction by the presence of mind of the butler, who caught it in his napkin as it fell. The "luck" is a tall tumbler of green glass, enamelled in crimson, blue, and green, in a sort of geometrical pattern. It is said to have been made right back somewhere in the tenth century, and is guarded with the utmost care by the Musgrave family. It is kept in a heavily-padded leathern case of fifteenth-century workmanship, with the sacred monogram "I. H. S." on the outside of it. It finds a resting-place in the Bank of England, and on the very rare occasions when it is taken to Cumberland a trusty clerk is sent with it.

A CANDID FRIEND.

When candour is carried to excess it is apt to lose its unpleasantness and to become diverting. This was certainly the case with the old gardener described by C. H. Brookfield in "Mrs. Brookfield and Her Circle." "Mr. Brookfield used to say: For a definite and clear belief take Joseph Swinden, gardener at my father's, who held that nobody could be saved who wore short breeches. He always spoke of his wife as unregenerate, though she was a very good woman, brought his dinners regularly, and had a comfortable home for him after his work. One morning at nine o'clock I went into the garden and found him hoeing turnips. "How do you do, Joseph?" "Nay, I am middling brave, thank the Lord." And how's your wife? My wife ! Why, she been in hell these five hours and half. Bless me, what do you mean ! She died at half past three this morning." This same Joseph Swinden thought nobody could be saved who wore pantaloons. I said once to him, "Now Joseph do you think St. Paul wore breeches ?" With admirable power of debate he answered, "I don't know what he wore, Mr. William, but I'll tell what he didn't wear. He didn't wear shirt collars up, velvet waist coat, gold buttons, blue satin cravate, boots and straps. Strutting about like a crow in a gutter" (describing myself in the year 1830 in detail).

OLD AGE.

According to some of the papers the oldest woman living in the world is Baba Vasilika, who lives in the little Bulgarian village of Pavelsko, where she first saw the light of day in May, 1784, according to documents reposing in the local church. She is the daughter of Bulgarian peasants, and until quite recently she worked in the fields just like any ordinary woman, notwithstanding her great age. She has never left the village in which she was born, but she is very proud of her hundred-year-old son, who resides near to her and who in his youth and prime was a noted soldier fighting upon many battle fields in Bulgaria. Her son still works in the fields from morning to night, but it seems doubtful whether he will attain to the great age of his mother, who is the wonder and admiration of all Bulgaria.

TANDEM SNORTS.

"Lucent Syrups, tinct with Cinnamon."

Dear Lux, my old friend and my fidus Achates,
I've read all your stuff. (It's not all small potatoes),
I've followed you thro', whether solid or porous,
Fagged Webster and Johnson and Roget's Thesaurus,
Read Solomon, David and all their relations
Th' Epistles to Cornith, the Psalms, Revelations,
Scanned these, and then all very closely discerning,
Bought fourteen large volumes of ready-made learning—

But what you are preaching and what you are at
I've not the remotest idea ; so that
Is the reason I'm writing to urge you to stop,
Though your lux lies at bottom and tenebris top.

I've studied your diction, and [illegible] each scene,
But hang me, I never can tell what you mean
For your Emerson, Clifford,—(Determinist schools
Are most of them rascals, and some of them fools)—
Your Weininger, Nietzsche—(Why isn't he dead,
Does he still turn the brain in your wonderful head?)—
Have covered five pages plus forty-five [illegible]
With optimist-pessimist, jumbled-up themes.
The things you have written—well, non disputandum,
But, hang me and darn me, I can't understand 'em,
Ah! Luxo, mon ami, I wish you could stop
With your tenebris bottom and lux at the top.

Aren't you tired of your physics and ration'list rant ?
We don't care for Huxley or Plato or Kant.
A rousing good lim'rick, or jockeys and bets,
And personal paras and scandals and vets,
And theatre-ladies with frillies and buskin,
Are more to our liking than Hegel or Ruskin,
Let Tolstoy and Clifford revalue our morals
And leave us to play amid mermaids and corals.
Their thoughts and their deeds are beginning to cloy
We'd rather mote round with a "principal boy",
So that's why we beg you for Gawd sake to stop
With your lux at the bottom and tenebris top.

We haven't the time your philos'phy to study
So tell us of dacoits and fights that are bloody,
Or teach us of peacocks, both winged and human,
Or fill up some pages of legal acumen :
What penalty's just for a thief if a dumb un ?
And whether divorce should be free for a woman ?
What are "torts," a "mandamus" and what an "adjournment ?

Or anything fairly within our discernment,
Or some neat little yarn about primitive man,
Whose life was a joke though it measured a span.
Of these, or of—nought—yet it's better to stop
Though your lux is at bottom and tenebris top.

LAND RECORDS IN BOMBAY.

A RESOLUTION of the Bombay "Government Gazette" on the annual report of the Department of Land Records states :—

It is satisfactory that the results of training Circle Inspectors in survey and settlement were good and that in the Northern Division a marked improvement in the quality of the work all round was observed. The instruction of village accountants in measurement was much less successful. Of the accountants who attended the training classes only 55 per cent. passed the final test, and of those afterwards examined by the Superintendents in the field only 57 per cent. were found to be proficient. In order to improve the efficiency of the system the Director has revised the course of practical instruction and introduced new methods of training and of testing the candidates. Of more importance than the training and the results of the tests which follow it is the use made of the instruction by the candidates after they return to their everyday duties, and in this respect there is great room for improvement. The measurement work of the Circle Inspectors is the subject of much strong and hostile criticism. The Superintendent of the Southern Division is of opinion that many subdivisional officers do not keep a sufficiently close grip on Circle Inspectors, and it seems clear that the remark applies, but more strongly, to the Mamlatdars who are in immediate supervision over the Circle Inspecters and in closer and more constant touch with their work. Government have already taken steps to improve the organisation of the Circle Inspector staff, and these include a provision for the promotion of skilled survey trained village accountants to that staff. This measure, in addition, to giving the village accountant better prospects of promotion, will encourage him to make a fuller use of his survey knowledge while acting as an accountant. So far his training has led to little actual result in after practice, and the mapping, which was to be one feature of the Record of Rights has hitherto made very slow progress. By means of special organisation some of the arrears were overtaken during the year in five districts and a large number of sub-divisions were measured and mapped. It is hoped that where the work has been done it will be kept carefully, up-to-date not allowed to lapse into the condition in which the Mutation Registers in some parts are reported to be.

The results of the measures taken to put all boundary marks in repair are not yet entirely satisfactory. It remains to be seen what will be the effect of the recent changes in the rules, as well as of the steps taken to improve the organisation of the staff of Circle Inspectors in charge of the operations. The Director is opposed to the employment of special temporary establishments, paid out of the rates levied on occupants for the repairs. The employment of special establishments has however proved necessary for the proper disposal of measurement cases and has been attended with useful results ; and Government think that for the first few years of the revised system of boundary marks inspection such establishments will frequently be the only practical means of dealing rapidly and efficiently with the great arrears of past years.

The Record of Rights is now practically complete in the whole of the Presidency proper. Its form has been recently revised and most of the mechanical difficulties associated with the forms and instructions originally prescribed are being removed. Government observe with great regret the neglect into which the maintenance of the Mutation Register has too generally fallen. It is altogether unsatisfactory that as is reported from the Northern Division some of these registers should not have been tested and checked for two years. In order to convert the Record of Rights into a record Liability it is essential that it should be accurate and up-to-date and Government entirely agree with the Director in considering that the attestation of mutations is at present one of the most important of a Mamlatdars duties. The fact reported by several district officers that the people are beginning to realise the importance and value of the Record only emphasises the necessity of maintaining it in a thoroughly efficient manner.

THE Punjab Government propose to hold an enquiry this cold weather to consider practically the question of fish preservation and breeding in the Punjab rivers and canals in the plains.

BIG RECRUITING SCHEME.

MILITARY TOURNAMENT ON EMPIRE TOUR.

Five Months' Visit to India.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

The War Office has approved an ambitious scheme with the object of giving a fillip to recruiting. The Naval and Military Tournament will next year tour the provinces, concluding with a display in London, and will then visit in turn Canada, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and India, devoting five months to each.

The financial difficulties have been overcome by public-spirited officers. The profits are estimated at £200,000 for the three years of the tour. The money will be devoted to the erection of a Veterans' Home for fifty officers, and 750 reservists. Colonel Burn, of the Indian Army, will be in command.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

SIMLA, SEPT. 22.

Nothing is yet known here regarding the proposed visit to India next year of the Naval and Military Tournament under Colonel Burn to which Reuter refers.

SOUTH AFRICAN POLITICS.

General Botha will Probably Resign.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

Reuter wires from Pretoria that Cabinet meetings were held yesterday. It is feared that General Botha's resignation is inevitable, his change of attitude being due to the capture of two seats by the Unionists, when they were expected to be won by the Nationalists, and other reasons which cause him to doubt whether the country is with him. He is determined to carry out a non-racial policy or resign. He construes the verdict of the polls with the two latest defeats at the polls as pro-racial signs. Discouraging factors are the persistence of Mr. Hull not to remain in office and General Botha's ill-health. Mr. Merriman will probably be summoned.

A native clergyman has been elected to the South African Parliament for Tembuland, defeating Unionist and Nationalist candidates,

THE KAISER IN VIENNA.

Cordial Speech.

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

Reuter wires from Vienna that the Municipal Council, headed by the Burgomaster, received the German Emperor to-day with great ceremony. His Majesty thanked them for their reception. He referred to the decision to name part of the Ringstrasse after him, and said he was deeply touched. He saw therein the recognition of the fact that the Emperor Francis Joseph's ally stood at his side in shining armour, obviously alluding to the Bosnian crisis.

The Kaiser continued: "The alliance between Austria and Germany has passed into the belief and life of both peoples as an impalpable influence and an advantage to the world." He called for cheers for the Emperor Francis Joseph, "whom my people regard with deep reverence, and to whom I look up with awe as a paternal friend and a symbol of personified self-abnegation and devotion to duty."

The German Ambassador gave a lunch in honour of the two Emperors, and crowds cheered their Majesties en route to the Embassy.

THE OPIUM CONFERENCE.

Great Britain's Attitude.

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

With reference to the Opium Conference, Great Britain has accepted the suggestion that the findings of the Shanghai Commission shall be embodied in a convention. Great Britain will lend every assistance in the investigation.

AVIATION.

Accident at Folkestone.

SIR HIRAM MAXIM GIVES UP.

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

While flying at Folkestone, the aviator Barnes fell a distance of fifty feet and fractured his skull.

Sir Hiram Maxim has abandoned his experiments in aviation on the eve of the completion of the biplane, of which he expected the greatest things. He explains he is over seventy and is too old. He is unable also to trust his workmen, and is discouraged by fatalities. It is impossible to insure the men, and hard to compete with the French, who have been studying the subject for years with the strong support of their Government.

THE CRIPPEN CASE.

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

Crippen and Miss Le Neve have been committed for trial.

THE TURKISH LOAN.

French Indignation.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

Reuter's correspondent in Paris is informed by an authoritative official quarter that the French Government regards the Cassel agreement as nothing less than an attempt by Turkey to blackmail France. British assistance in the agreement is provisional, and will only become effective after the 1st of October in the event of negotiations with France being finally abandoned, but it can be regarded as already definitive, the French Government refusing to abate one jot from their conditions.

The informant added: "If British investors are satisfied with less, and if Britain is willing to help Turkey in joining hands with the Triple Alliance and buying ships and guns from Germany that is her affair. The French Government will do its utmost to prevent a scrap of loan paper coming into the French market."

LONDON, SEPT. 22.

The Times states that no agreement has been concluded with the Cassel group regarding the Turkish loan, though the Turkish Minister of Finance, on his recent visit to London, probably received assurances that in the event of the negotiations in Paris failing, the Turkish Government would receive the support of the National Bank of Turkey. It is thought quite possible that despite the delay, the negotiations between the Turkish and French Governments may yet result in an agreement.

LATER.

While the exact facts with regard to the Cassels loan remain somewhat doubtful the question has assumed great political significance. It is being discussed in Continental capitals with considerable heat and especially in Paris where the press is most outspoken and accuses Sir E. Cassel of acting largely in the interests of Germany. On the other hand German papers rejoice at the collapse of the French loan, attributing its break-down to an attempt on the part of France, instigated by Russia, to compel the Porte to give satisfactory undertakings with reference to its attitude towards the Triple Alliance.

The Berliner Tageblatt says: "French statesmen regard Turkish affairs wholly through Russian spectacles and under an attack of nerves, for which the purchase of German warships by Turkey may have been responsible."

SHIPYARD LOCK-OUT.

Both Sides Obstinate.

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

A Conference has begun at Edinburgh between the shipbuilders and the boilermakers. It is understood that the negotiations have so far been of a friendly nature and a provisional settlement is expected.

LONDON, SEPT. 22.

The Edinburgh Conference has adjourned without arriving at any decision. The men demanded that the employers should formulate proposals while the latter said it was for the men to make proposals. The men retired and discussed the question for seven hours. The Union officials were inclined to yield, but the representatives appointed by the men's district meetings were obstinate.

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, SEPT. 21.

This is the first time in the history of the country that subjects have plotted against the Sovereign's life. It was proposed to assassinate the Emperor, while he was visiting a military school outside the capital. The arrest and imprisonment of several active Socialists lends plausibility to the story.

OUTLAW TROUBLE ON THE BORDER.

Influence of Busybodies from Kabul.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, SEPT. 22.

The Pioneer says:—The news that has reached us from the North West Frontier shows, that far from the situation on the much troubled Border having improved in the last few weeks, affairs are steadily going from bad to worse. As we pointed out a week or two ago, the outlaw trouble during the past six months has assumed very serious proportions and there is little doubt that the activity of these men is largely due to the direct encouragement they receive at the hands of the Afghan Officials in Khost. It now appears, that certain busybodies at Kabul, have latterly been hard at work stirring up the Afridis and other trans-Frontier tribes against us, and that they have made sufficient progress with their machinations, to give cause for no little apprehension with regard to future developments, when the 'Ramzan' is over. The success which has attended the raids of some of the more daring outlaws, has naturally excited the envy of other enterprising spirits across the border, and it is certain that the losses sustained by the tribesmen over the arms traffic, have tended considerably to embitter their feelings towards us. The difficulties of the Frontier Administration have now been seriously enhanced, by this further communication of Kabul intrigues. It is high time that the attention of His Majesty the Amir were drawn to this state of affairs, and it is not improbable that certain representations have already been made to His Majesty on the subject.

PESHAWAR, SEPT. 22.

Frontier reports describe some excitement on the Afridi border consequent on Afghan agitators who have lost over the stoppage of the Persian Gulf arm traffic, but the tribes as a whole do not appear to be affected and it is hoped that the position will improve before the end of the Ramazan.

MINTO MEMORIAL STATUE.

Movement in Calcutta

CALCUTTA, SEPT. 22.

The Committee of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce have issued invitations for a preliminary meeting to be held on Tuesday next to consider the question of the erection of a statue to Lord Minto in Calcutta. The Committee state that they are confident that the eminent services which Lord Minto has rendered to India during the term of his Viceroyalty will secure for the movement which they are now initiating the sympathy of all. In convening a preliminary meeting to consider the question, they are only giving effect to the strong consensus of opinion that it is in the highest degree desirable that early steps should be taken with a view to the erection in the capital city of a memorial worthy of His Excellency.

SIR ARTHUR LAWLEY.

Proposed Farewell Entertainment.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MADRAS, SEPT. 22.

Referring to the Sheriff of Madras' visit to Ooty and the proposed entertainment to H. E. the Governor, the "Hindu" comments thus:—The information which has reached us locally is that an entertainment is being organised avowedly by friends and admirers of Sir Arthur Lawley. What struck us as most singular in the movement when we first heard of it sometime ago was the mystery in which the initiatory proceedings were kept shrouded and the fact that it should have been started when more than six months had still to expire for Sir Arthur Lawley to leave Madras. We have no doubt, however, that Dewan Bahadur Venkatasami Naidu acts in the matter on his own behalf and on behalf of only friends and admirers of Sir Arthur and not in his official capacity as Sheriff of Madras representing its citizens."

POONA KING EDWARD MEMORIAL.

Hon. Mr. Lamb's Speech.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

POONA, SEPT 22.

A large and representative meeting of the inhabitants of the City, Cantonment and suburbs was held this evening for the purpose of concerting measures for perpetuating the memory of the late King-Emperor Edward VII. Sardar Nowrojee Pudumjee proposed the Hon. Mr. Lamb do take the chair, Sardar Coopooswamy Mudliar and Rao Bahadur S. V. Patwardhan seconding the proposition.

In opening the proceedings the Hon. Mr. Lamb said:—"It is proper that in a meeting held to do honour to the memory of His late Majesty, the officers of His Majesty's Government not less than the non-official classes should participate and render such assistance as their fellow subjects might require of them both personally and hereditarily. He (the speaker) was closely connected with Poona. His father had spent here many of his best working years of his life. He himself had been in Poona, had begun his service here, had spent many strenuous days here and he hoped to work there yet a while. It was fitting therefore as a citizen of Poona that he should also be their Chairman."

The speaker then went on to trace the distinction between title and office of King and Emperor and continued: "We the subjects of the Monarch in India are differently circumstanced. Here there is no homogeneous nation from which may be taken a single family, the head of which shall be our King. We are as yet and shall continue to be for an unknown period of time, a collection of many nations and tribes, and races and castes and divisions and sub-divisions of castes whose claims and interests in many respects clash and jar with one another and can be regulated and adjusted only by a bond of common obedience of all to a single ruler. Such a ruler though he may be King of his own nation, is rightly entitled Emperor for the respect of all his subjects in the land of many races which he governs for the common good of all."

After quoting Mr. Romesh Chunder Dutt's translation of Krishna, the King of Dwarka's advice to his kinsman Yudhishthir as given in the Mahabharata, the speaker said:—"When our first Emperor of modern times, Emperor Edward the First of India laid down his sovereignty and rule and majesty, it is natural for us to look back on his life and reign and ask how far he fulfilled the precepts which Krishna addresses to Yudhishthir. 'Like a father tend thy subjects, with a father's love and care, free from pride and free from passion, rule them with a virtuous mind.' The answer to that was furnished by the profound grief of all nations at his death."

In conclusion he hoped that notwithstanding other memorials which were being raised, Poona would be able to have a memorial of reverence and loyalty of its citizens for the great ruler. It was next proposed by Dr. Bhandarkar, seconded by Diwan Bahadur V. M. Samavth and supported by Rao Saheb V. A. Patwardhan and Mr. Abdulla Abdul Wahed that this meeting of inhabitants of City, Cantonment and Suburbs of Poona deems it its loyal duty to take steps to perpetuate in suitable manner, the memory of their late beloved Sovereign King Edward VII, Emperor of India.

The proposition by Khan Bahadur N. D. Khandalawala that a Committee should be appointed to collect subscriptions and take all necessary steps in the matter was also unanimously passed.

The following have been appointed secretaries:—Rao Bahadurs Ramnarayan Amar Chand, M. K. Kumethekar, Khan Bahadur M. H. Dastur, and Mr. Jussuff H. Jaffer. A vote of thanks to the Chair was proposed by the Hon. Mr Gokhale, seconded by Mr K A Ghaswala.

SHIP'S BOILER EXPLOSION AT CALCUTTA.

Engineers Dismissed.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CALCUTTA, SEPT. 22.

This morning while the turret ship "Flamingo" was being hauled out of Kidderpore Docks a terrific report was heard due to the blowing out of one of the boiler plates which caused the whole engine-room to be enveloped in steam. The Chief Engineer stopped the engine and the ship had to be hauled back into the tidal basin where on examination it was found that some of the safety valve caps which fasten the joints to the boiler had been removed,

Three of the ship's engineers including the Chief were dismissed yesterday for alleged gross negligence and for being under the influence of liquor. New engineers were installed. It is chiefly due to the presence of mind displayed by the new Chief Engineer and his second in shutting off steam that no casualties occurred. Repairs to the damaged boiler are practically finished and the Chief Engineer hopes to leave the docks to-morrow morning.

DACCA SHOOTING CASE.

Complainant's Evidence.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

DACCA, SEPT. 22.

Accused Nripendrakumar Chakraverty and Hiranya Kumar Gupta were charged under Secs. 307 for attempting to murder Babu Saratchandra Ghosh, Inspector, by shooting. The case was taken up before Babu Ganga Charan Chatterjee, Additional Magistrate. At 12-30 Babu Ganesh Chandra Das, Govt. Pleader, Barisal, appeared for Nripendra Kumar Chakraverty and Babu Narendrakumar Chakravarty for Hiranya.

Sarat Chandra Ghose, complainant, examined stated:—I am a C. I. D. Inspector from April last. My principal duty was then to watch the movements of members of the Anushilan Samity and to report regarding them to Mr. Salkeld. The Conspiracy case is pending in Dacca. All accused in the Conspiracy case are members of the Anushilan Samity. I was engaged in collecting information and evidence in that case. On 1st Sept. I went out of my house at 5-30 to Inspector Ananta Chakravarty's house, thence to Ashu Bobu's and then I purchased some goods from a shop at Patvataly at about 7 p. m. I met Kedar Ghose and Harendra near the shop and with them I went to the Kotwali. I turned towards my lodging at 8-45 p. m. by the Patvataly road by the Club and Victoria Park. When I was near the Kalia Bazar Lane a man fell upon me after shooting, I caught the man by his hair. His name is Nripendra Chakraverty. I was struggling with him when another shot was fired at me from behind. I looked behind and found it was Hiranya. I had a stick in my left hand. I hurled it at him, then Hiranya again fired. It grazed by my head and cheek. A Mahomedan came there when Hiranya fired from behind. I had a coat on. It was burning. The Mahomedan asked whether I know the two men. I gave him the names of the persons who fired and told him to remember the two names. I also asked the name and father's name of the Mahomedan. His name was Ostagar. Then a carriage came there. I and Ostagar went to hospital in that carriage. I sent information to Bankin Babu and gave 'ijahar' before him. I am still in hospital under treatment. I could recognise the accused as the nearest electric light post was 10 or 12 cubits to the south west of me. I knew them before as they were members of the Anushilan Samity. I was the investigating officer in the Shaheen stabbing case. Nipendra was made an accused in that case. Nripendra absconded. His house was twice searched. A warrant for the attachment of his properties was issued according to my prayer.

The case is proceeding.

LATER.

On Harinarayan Banerjee complaining that his nephew was kidnapped and kept confined in the Samity house Pulin Babu and 26 other members were arrested at my instance. I made an open enquiry in the Dacca conspiracy case. One Upendra was employed as spy by me. He deposed in the Conspiracy case, hence the accused grew angry. Upendra Gupta, pleader, told me that the members of the Samity have attempted to take my life four times and that he came to know this from the members themselves. Upendra Ghose informed me that Paresh Das and Nripendra Chakraverty and others told him that they would teach those police a lesson who would go out alone. During the Jhulan both accused were under police surveillance. I arrested Jyotirmoy in the Victoria Park stabbing case. Jyertirmoy was convicted in that case. Cross-examination was reserved.

Next witness Omar Ostagar examined, stated:—I know complainant. On 16 Bhadra, Thursday night, I was going southwards to my house from Rai Saheb's bazar. Complainant was then coming from the south. When complainant was 25 yards off I heard a report of a gun and saw complainant holding a man by the hair. While struggling with him I heard the report of another gun. This last gun was fired by another man after whom I ran saying 'catch the sala.' When I was about two or three cubits off the two men fired another gun and fled along the lane near by. I saw the face of these two men and shall be able to identify them if I see them. (Witness identified the accused.) I frequently pass by their house, so I am able to recognise them. I then approached the complainant on whose left arm I found something burning which I put out. The complainant told me the names of the two accused, but I forget them. I went home the following day at 5 p. m. I was examined by Bankim Babu Inspector at Nunir Hoshein Beparis' house. Sometime after that I was taken in a closed carriage to hospital. I was taken to the second storey where the Magistrate Sahib was standing who asked me if I could identify accused, 25 or 30 men were standing there from among whom I picked out accused. I never saw accused after the date of the occurrence and before identification before the Magistrate.

Hedayatulla, a hackney carriage driver, on being examined, stated:—On Thursday the sixteenth Bhadra last at 8 to 9 p. m. I was driving along Nawabpore when I heard three reports of guns and saw the flash of guns the two men flying along the lane close to the church. Omar Jan Ostagar asked me to stop the carriage which I did. Ostagar then put the complainant into my carriage and asked me to take him to hospital.

THE TRIANGULAR CONTEST.

Presidency vs. Hindus.

AN EXCITING DRAW.

About 6,000 spectators witnessed the start in the third day's match between the Presidency and the Hindus. The game had lost some of its interest owing to there being little probability of its coming to a definte conclusion. Messrs G. M. Pearson and S. D. Thakore acted as umpires. Want of time deprived the Presidency yesterday of a brilliant victory over the Hindus, and the final game of the Triangular Contest resulted in a draw very much in favour of the Englishmen. Twice during the day did victory appear within reach of the Presidency and twice did it slip out of their grip. When in their first innings the Hindus lost four of their finest batsmen for 50, there appeared a chance of the Presidency disposing of the 'tail' for something under 30 and thus making their opponents follow on. Talpade and Date however made a fine effort and succeeded in saving the follow on. The early prospect of the match coming to a definite end thus disappeared, but another came in view almost immediately after. Though the Hindus had saved the follow on, their first effort had eventually realised only 112, and when the innings came to an end just before the luncheon interval, it did not look impossible that the Presidency might knock up half a century in half an hour by free cricket and declare, and then sending their opponents in might dispose of them in the two hours or so that might be left for play. It was a sporting and daring chance which the Presidency took, for though their first innings had produced only 112, the Hindus were an admittedly strong batting combination, who, it was not improbable, might knock up the required 177 within the time at their disposal. The Presidency, however, as stated above, made a sporting effort, and making 55 for 3 wickets declared their second innings closed at a quarter to 4. Amid tremendous excitement the first four Hindu wickets fell for a poor total of 32. Then, however, on Pai joining Date, the two put a different complexion on the game, and making a long stand they steadily raised the score. As the score went on, victory gradually slipped out of the Presidency grip. There was some excitement when a quarter of an hour before the time fixed for drawing stumps, the seventh wicket fell for 112, but Oghad and Joshi played out time, and the match eventually resulted in a draw.

The draw was undoubtedly much in favour of the Presidency, as they had altogether made 289 and when they declared in the second innings, they had still, seven wickets in hand; while the Hindus' first effort had produced only 112 and in the second innings had lost seven wickets also for 112. The Hindus did not make a poor show, but it was certainly not up to their reputation as a strong batting combination. Perhaps the only relieving feature of a batting failure was the stand made by Date and Pai in their second innings. Practically it was the long and plucky stand which these two batsmen made that saved the Hindus from what looked like a certain defeat. When in their second venture the Hindus sent in Balu, a slogging bat, first with Diveker, it seemed as if they were making a bold bid for victory, and indeed nobody would have been surprised if they had made such an attempt. But the Hindu batsmen, with an exception or two, took to stone walling one after the other and it was obvious that they were playing for a draw. On the whole the Hindu batting was a failure, but Date, Pai, Oghad and Talpade's efforts deserve praise. Date especially played a fine innings, which was unmarred by a single chance. Simms, the Sussex amateur, carried off the bowling honours of the day, capturing altogether eight wickets. In the first innings especially, he secured an excellent analysis, getting four wickets for a little over two runs apiece.

There will be no toss up for the position as holders next year though the match has ended in a draw; for according to the rules of the Triangular Contest, the champions of the previous year retain their right of remaining in the bye and playing the final match of the Tournament until actually defeated.

DETAILS OF THE PLAY.

Overnight the Hindus had made 1 run for no loss. On the start yesterday morning, Divekar and Oghad, the overnight not-outs, faced the Presidency attack which was entrusted to Ward at the Gymkhana and Freeman at the Police Court end. Divekar cut Ward to the western boundary, and Freeman sent down a maiden over to Oghad. The batsmen seemed to have adopted stone-walling tactics as only half a dozen runs came in as the result of fifteen minutes' play, and Freeman and Ward sent down three and two maidens respectively. Oghad then sending Ward to the Waudby Road boundary telegraphed the first decade, and in the next over pulled a short-pitched delivery of Freeman's to leg for four. Freeman who was now gradually finding his length had Divekar finely held at the wickets by Sprott. The outgoing batsman had contributed 11 by steady cricket (20-1-11). Pai joined Oghad, and Cheetham was put on to bowl in place of Ward at the Gymkhana end. A little later Oghad hitting the new bowler to the leg boundary sent up the third decade and in the next over nicely placed Freeman to leg for four. The total stood at 39 when Ward relieved Cheetham. The game was very dull, the batsmen continuing to play a stone-wall game and runs coming in only by singles. With the total at 43 Oghad pulled one of Freeman's deliveries to leg, and was held by Burnham. This total came as the result of an hour's play. The Kathiawar batsman had played a faultless though rather tedious game for his 21 (43-2-21). Mehta, the Hindu skipper, was associated with Pai. A disaster then befell the Hindus, as the total had been increased by only 4, when Pai, was brilliantly held at the wickets by Sprott off Ward (47-3-11). Date joined his skipper. The new comer getting a single off Ward sent up the half century amid cheers. Shortly after, however Mehta was caught at short leg by Brooke off Ward (50-4-1). The game became at this stage greatly interesting and the question whether the Hindus who had already lost four of their best bats would get the required number of runs to save the follow on was keenly discussed by the spectators. Talpade was the next man in. At 61 Turner replaced Freeman. Talpade sent the new bowler's first delivery to the leg boundary. He had two lives at this stage, being missed in the slips once by Burnham and then by Ward off Turner. The prospect of a Hindu follow on gradually disappeared, as Date and Talpade steadily raised the score to 70 and their side had now only 14 runs to make to save the follow on. At 75 Simms was entrusted with the attack in place of Ward at the Gymkhana end. The Hindus hit up the required number of runs to save the follow on, but immediately after, Date was held in the slips by Ward off Turner. The outgoing batsman had played fine cricket and assisted Talpade in adding 35 for the fifth wicket (85-5-14). Balu who partnered Talpade, was soon out to a catch at the wicket by Sprott off Burnham, who had lately been put on to bowl in place of Turner (89-6-0) and a little later Talpade was finely held in the slips by Miller off Simms. Talpade had made 22 in fine free style, but was missed twice when at 10 (89-7-22). Joshi joined Shivram. Simms scattered the new-comer's wickets with a fine delivery (93-8-3) and a little later the Sussex amateur had Shivram caught at short leg by Turner (94-9-1). Erasha joined Sesachari, who was missed by Freeman off his own delivery. Sesachari opened his shoulders and nicely pulling Freeman to the leg boundary telegraphed the century amid cheers. He next got a two and a single off the same bowler. Both the batsmen hit out and the eleventh decade was telegraphed. The total stood at 112, when Sprott smartly stumped Erasha. Sesachari was not out with 10 to his credit. The Hindu innings thus terminated with the total at 112 (112-10-7).

THE PRESIDENCY'S SECOND VENTURE.

After the lunch interval the Presidency entered upon their second venture with a favourable balance of 122. The Hindus had saved the follow on, but had nevertheless been disposed of for a small total, and as the last wicket fell with the total at 112, the possibility reappeared of the game coming to a definite conclusion. There remained an outside chance of the Presidency knocking up half a century in a short time, and declaring their innings closed, and then sending the Hindus in with a sufficient margin of time to dispose of them in. The Presidency opened their second innings sending in Brooke and Simms. The sending in of the Sussex amateur first with Brooke clearly showed the Presidency had determined upon forcing the game. Simms and Brooke got a single each off Balu, and then the Sussex batsman placed Balu to the leg for four. Brooke

Balu. Brooke drove Erasha to the boundary and sent up the first decade. Both batsman hit out, and Brooke skied a ball off Balu and was finely held by Mehta (11-1-7). Turner who joined Simms, cut Balu for a single. Simms hit Erasha to the boundary and was then missed in the slips by Balu off the same bowler. Twenty was telegraphed and one run later Simms was out to a catch in the slips by Pai off Balu (21-2-11). Christie next came in and 35 runs had been scored as the result of half an hour's play. Oghad relieved Erasha at this stage. Christie hit out and soon sent up the fourth decade. Turner in attempting to hit at Balu was smartly stumped by Sesachari (44-3-13) Cheetham who joined Christie, pulled Talpade to the leg for four and telegraphed the half century amid cheers. The Presidency had made 55 for 3 wickets, when they declared their innings closed at 3-40 p.m.

HINDUS SECOND INNINGS.

At 4-40 p. m. the Hindus went in to bat a second time and were behind the Presidency by 177 runs at this stage. Divekar and Balu faced the bowling of Freeman and Simms. Balu was missed in the slips by Cheetham off Freeman, before he had made a single. The Hindus had made only 1 when they lost Divekar out to a brilliant running catch at short leg by Brooke off Simms (1-1-1). Talpade joined Balu. The latter hit out and took the total to 22, when he was run out in attempting to snatch a run (22-2-13). Mehta who was the next man in, was caught seven runs later by Ward off Simms (29-3-2). The Hindus had thus not opened well as they had lost three of their finest bats for a paltry 29. Pai associated with Talpade. At 30 Turner was put on to bowl in place of Freeman. The total had been increased by only two, when Talpade was finely held in the slips by Ward off Turner (32-4-10). Date and Pai steadily raised the score to 50, the half century coming as the result of an hour's play. At 53, Burnham replaced Turner, and Ward relieved Simms. At 5 p.m. the Hindus had lost 4 wickets for 70 runs. Pai was at this stage missed by Simms off Burnham. There were some more changes in bowling, but the batsmen continued to augment the score. At 99 Date was held by Brooke off Simms (99-5-37). The outgoing batsman had played a fine faultless innings of 37, and assisted in adding 67 for the fifth wicket. Oghad joined Pai, who 13 runs later was caught in the slips by Christie off Freeman (112-6-26.) There was great excitement at this stage, there being quarter of an hour to time and the Hindus having four wickets in hand. The excitement was considerably increased when with no addition to the total, Shivram, the new-comer, was bowled by Simms (112-7-0). Joshi was the next man in. The Hindus had made 112 for 7 wickets, when time was called, the match thus ending in a draw. The scores were :—

CHAT ABOUT BOOKS.

"AN ARMY SURGEON'S CAREER."—In spite of the common opinion that a woman cannot for long pass as a man without arousing suspicion. I am giving a short account of Dr. James Barry, M.D., Inspector-General of Hospitals. It may sound like a paradox, but we very much doubt if ever there was "a woman with a past" of so pronounced a type as that of the late Dr. James Barry, M. D., Inspector-General of Hospitals, who, having personated a man during her adult life-time, died at the ripe age of seventy-one years, in Down street, Piccadilly, London, on July 15, 1865, and was then and there found to be of the female sex! Her grave in Kensal Green, bearing the very single inscription Dr. James Barry, Inspector-General of Army Hospitals; died July 15, 1865; aged 71 years; (Grave 19,301.) In the following year an "inspired" article in "All the Year Round," entitled "A Mystery Still," became the temporary talk of the town, for in it was disclosed the strange eventful history of the Sphinx-like individual. "Not only was Dr. Barry discovered to be a woman, remarks the writer, "but it was made evident that in early life she had been a mother." And inquest was held (in consequence of her refusal to be medically attended in her last illness), and next day it was officially reported to the War Office that the deceased Inspector-General of hospital was in truth a woman! "In person James Barry was short in stature, angular in figure, with a long Ciceronian nose, prominent check bones and a rather lugubrious expression of countenance. . . . Details of her life were, as I have stated, given shortly after her death, in the May number of "All the Year Round" (1866), entitled 'A Mystery Still,' and from these particulars, as well as from such information as I subsequently gleaned. I formulated the (so-called) heronie of my novel in three volumes, 'A modern Sphinx.' Imperious in manner and officially dictatorial, in social circles Dr. Barry was admired and respected; she was moreover, sympathetic, and skilful in her profession—yet what a life of repressed emotions must hers have been? One peculiarity was a strictly vegetable diet, no meat, or even wine or other liquor and she always evinced a dislike of medical men! She had a great fondness for animals, keeping several cats and dogs very happily, she was rather bombastic in speech and repellent in manner, but kind and anxious to do good to those who were never likely to become intrusive or familiar or troublesome to her. . . . When I think of the anxiety, care, and trouble she must have experienced for years to keep up the assumed character probably first undertaken for the love of some man and subsequently retained perhaps for the sake of his character as well as her own, it seems surprising how she could have possessed so many good points for I saw a great deal of her in Jamaica. I believe her manner and speech were assumed to repel inquisitive associates. It must have been a life of great misery to have been obliged to be continually acting a part so repellent to her better feelings." Lieut.-Colonel E. Rogers is bringing out a cheap edition of his novel "A Modern Sphinx" in which many incidents in the life of this remarkable woman appear, unfortunately very little is known of her early life, which will remain a mystery still.

HARMEN POLS, Peasant, by Maarten Maartens—(Methuen).—Although Mr. Maartens lives in Holland and his stories are mostly about Dutch life and Dutch people, still they are written in English and have a strange fasination for English readers. Harmen Pols, the hero of this story, is called upon to face a severe trial. Upon the marriage of his elderly spinster aunt, the little farm on which they have all lived, has to be divided to give the aunt her share, to divide it, it must be sold. Gradually the young man finds out, in his efforts to save the farm, that things are not what he has always thought them. The foundations of his life seem to be broken up. His father, whom he had looked upon as the essence of hard virtue, has sinned, and his mother, the only person whom he had ever loved, had sinned too. He loses his faith in human as well as Divine goodness, but his love for a sweet young girl changes his thoughts again, and the end is happy. The conviction formed by young Harmen at one time, that the girl he loved was his sister, fortunately turns out to be untrue. The repentance and confession of the dear old Mother are beautiful. A really good book to read.

"THE DOLOMITES," by S.H. Hamer—(Methuen, 7s. 6d.).—The Tyrol is one of the few mountain districts in Europe within easy reach of a slender purse. A charming place for a holiday as gathered from Mr. Hamer's book and Mr. Rountree's sketches of these amazing mountains, which at the first impression, as the author says, "are frankly impossible; no such mountains were ever seen before, and surely will never be seen again : they seem to defy all rules . . . assume all sorts of weired and grotesque shapes, and their colouring is almost inconceivable." The Dolomites are, indeed, a beautiful gem in the scarcely less beautiful setting of the Tyrolese Alps which encircle them. But the mountains are not the only attraction. The charm and simplicity of the countryfolk, especially of the children, who never fail with a smile or a curtsey to wish you "Gruss Gott," the tiny carts drawn by dogs, the quaint pictures on the little wayside shrines set up to the memory of those who have met their death by flood or avalanche or storm—all these conspire together to make the country the paradise of the pedestrian.

ANOTHER interesting book that I have come across is called "The Moon of Bath," by Beth Ellis—(Blackwood).—There is, perhaps, not much that is original in the story. Beau Nash and his times have appeared in many forms, by many writers, but the present writer has created such a charming hero. Timothy Curtis is a human being that every reader will sympathise with. He gets into no end of trouble through a simple accident. King George had not been long on the throne of England, there were many plots and many plotters some of the highest in the land being drawn into these secret plans to bring the pretender to England. Our hero "Tim" as he was familiarly called was suspected and all through a bracelet from "The Moon of Bath." She was a heroine quite worth wading through fire and water for however.

THE University of Cambridge has acquired the copyright of the Encyclopædia Britannica, and is about to publish, at the University Press, an entirely new (Eleventh) edition of this well-known work. The Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica is a completely new and original survey of human knowledge, down to the summer of 1910, and that it has, for the first time in the case of any first-class work of reference, been constructed as a whole, and will consequently be published as a whole.

To the book-lover with a memory it will be no news that Mr. Frankford Moore is keenly interested in the eighteenth century. On many occasions he has turned his knowledge of that richly literary period to good account in the way of fiction; and "The Jessamy Bride," in particular, contained an excellent picture of the circle which was adorned by the winsome company of Oliver Goldsmith, Mr. Moore is now about to put his eighteenth-century studies to a more strenuous use by the production of a complete biography of Goldsmith, which Messrs Constable announce for early publication. Mr. Moore has a popular touch in work of this kind, which at the same time does not prevent him from getting together the latest and most accurate material available. His romance, in a word, has scholarship behind it—a combination not very common in an age of light-hearted book-making.

THE Constables have nearly ready a new version of the story of Elizabeth Stuart, retold by Miss Marie Hay, the author of "A German Pompadour." "The well-beloved, sweet, unhappy lady" whose life is thus recalled to later memory was the daughter of James I. and Miss Hay, while casting her narrative in the form of a romance, has verified all the details, scenes and characters by the authority of ancient chronicles, by the records of studious searchers through many archives and by the extensive investigations which she has herself undertaken among hitherto unexplored MSS. The volume which she has thus produced ought to have no little historical interest, and it will be richly illustrated with reproductions of forgotten portraits and other valuable pictures.

DR. Roland G. Usher, Instructor in History at Washington University, has written for Messrs. D. Appleton and Co. an important study in ecclesiastical history which will, no doubt, attract the attention of the specialists. It is entitled "The Reconstruction of the English Church," and its object is to set forth the legal and administrative history of the later Reformation, and to analyse in detail the influence upon the Church of the economic crisis of the country. The effect of his study is to prove that the real work of the English Reformation was not completed until the codification of the Constitution in the Canons of 1604. The work is in two large volumes, representing many years of faithful research into all the accessible material in print and manuscript. Dr. Usher is regarded in America as one of the most distinguished graduates who have ever proceeded from Harvard University, and he has also studied at Oxford, Cambridge, and Paris.

FOOTBALL.

Bombay Rovers' Tournament.

GLOSTERS vs. LEICESTERS.

The second game in the second round of the Rovers' tournament, took place on the Cooperage on Thursday evening, between the Leicesters (holders) and the Glosters. There was a large crowd present, in anticipation of an exciting and interesting game, but in this they were disappointed, as the Leicesters' outclassed the local regiment from start to finish, more especially so in the second half. Smith played a fairly good game in goal for the Gloster's as did Harris on the left (who was practically starved throughout the game) when he did receive the ball. With these two exceptions, the Glosters generally played an unaccountably poor game.

The Leicesters losing the toss, kicked off facing the sun, and, for a short period, the game was of a give and take character, after which the cupholders began to find their feet, and tested Smith several times, and on one or two of occasions he was distinctly lucky in clearing. The Glosters continued to act on the defensive, their backs however, not appearing at all safe, and at the end of twenty minutes, Wale, who played a splendid game throughout, put in an excellent shot, which Smith just managed to save, only to see Wardle who was well up, place the ball into the net. The Leicesters were still pressing when the whistle blew for the interval.

In the second half the Leicesters continued to keep the Glosters' defence busy, and after a neatly combined run by their forwards, Barton added a second goal with a shot that completely beat Smith. The Glosters' forwards occasionally got to the vicinity of their opponents' goal, but never looked like scoring, and the Leicesters finding the net again through the instrumentality of Butler just on time, ran out easy winners by three goals to love.

Result :—
Leicesters 3
Glosters.. 0

Teams.—

GLOSTERS.—Goal : Smith; backs : Ruck and Scaife; half-backs : Barton, Sherwood and Curtis; forwards : Short, Lt. Holmes, Hill, Leahy and Harris.

LEICESTERS.—Goal : Owen; backs : Bailey and Faulkes; half-backs: Cliffe, Wale and Whitmore; forwards: Wardle, Butler, Barton, Shifler and French.

During the interval the usual sprinting match was run off, teams representing the Royal Dublin Fusiliers and the Khan Saheb's team competing, the latter winning by eleven points to four.

DURNAD FOOTBALL TOURNAMENT.

North Staffords versus West Ridings.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

SIMLA, SEPT. 22.

The drawn game between these two teams was played this morning, and resulted in a win for the North Staffords by two goals to one. At the start the game was very evenly contested, the Staffords having a larger share of the attack while on the other hand the West Ridings frittered away many chances of scoring. The Staffords forwards and halves then started pressing, and ere the game was twenty minutes old, had managed to secure their first goal. Play afterwards ruled even for a time, the principal incident being the left half of the Ridings missing a splendid chance of drawing level. The game at half-time stood North Staffords one, West Ridings nil.

In the second half the opening exchanges were in favour of the Staffords, who forced three corners in quick succession and notched their second goal within three minutes from the re-start. On the ball being centred, the West Ridings forwards made a combined rush, and by some pretty passing obtained their first and only goal. Play now was of a fast and exciting nature, the Staffords still doing the majority of the attacking, the Ridings however defending well.

Result :—
North Staffords.. 2
West Ridings.. 1

Gordons vs King's Liverpools.

The first game this morning was between the Gordons and the King's Liverpools. There was a strong breeze blowing and the Liverpools were at a disadvantage in having to play against wind, but play for the first fifteen minutes was fairly even, The Gordons then started pressing and had two good openings but lost both by shooting wide. The King's then led the attack and gave the Gordons' goal-keeper a few anxious moments. The Gordons then took the attack again and kept up a heavy pressure on their opponents' goal, but lost an almost certain goal by a ruling of offside against the centre forward. The whistle soon after blew for half-time, the score being love all.

In the second half the King's who had the advantage of the breeze started pressing from the very beginning. Within five minutes from start they forced a corner. From a beautiful corner kick the King's left winger headed the ball into the net and thus drew first blood for his side. A few minutes later one of the King's half-backs met with a serious accident which resulted in the dislocation of his arm. The game after this was all in favour of the Gordons, but the King's, playing only ten men, offered a most stubborn resistance and prevented the Gordons from scoring. The rain soon came on in torrents and within five minutes the ground was nothing but a sheet of water. The Gordons who are accustomed to play on wet ground thereafter, a double advantage over their opponents, managed to equalise. Nothing further happened and at the call of time the game was a draw of one all.

The match will probably be replayed to-morrow evening. The match between the Royal Scots and the Highland Light Infantry was postponed owing to the heavy state of the ground.

THE LADIES' CORNER.

NEW AUTUMN MILLINERY.

According to the dictionary definition, writes a London correspondent, a hat is supposed to be a covering for the head, but it would seem almost as though the new hats for the autumn would assume even more extensive responsibilities, and would cover not only the head and the whole of the hair, but would rest upon and threaten to envelop the shoulders also. Some of the hats in the so-called "picture" shapes completely dwarf and overbalance the figures that wear them, while others, again, are arranged with brims of such abnormal width that when they are tilted to the fashionable angle, and seen from one side, only an eyebrow, perhaps, is visible, or just the tip of the nose.

HATS ON SIMPLER LINES.

Some hats there are, of course, designed on simpler lines and of more reasonable proportions, and among these the shapes in soft black felt promise to enjoy a great success made with high crowns and fairly wide brims. A hat of this description placed comfortably rather on the top than at the back of the head, has a very wide brim turned up sharply on one side towards the front in such a way that the prettily-waved hair is fully displayed to view. The brim is then caught closely against the crown with a cockade rosette of black velvet, over which there falls one, long black ostrich feather. Other plumes placed rather high at the side droop gracefully over the crown round which a broad scarf of black velvet ribbon is lightly draped.

A FASCINATING HAT.

Another large black felt hat of an equally fascinating shape has a wide brim which is beat down closely over the hair on either side while in front it takes almost the form of a poke bonnet. One long black ostrich feather is placed straight across the front of the crown so that it rests upon the brim while at the back there is a huge bow of black satin ribbon with a number of upstanding loops which reach high above the top of the crown.

OTHER SHAPES.

Among other large shapes that are worthy of note, there are some which follow pretty closely the now familiar "cloche" lines arranged with wide mushroom brims, covered smoothly either with satin or panne and lined underneath with black velvet, These hats are trimmed round the crown with satin roses in rich shades of deep crimson, and they look very smart with gowns in fine white cloth or serge. Hats for country wear intended for bright days are still being very simply but effectively trimmed with broad soft scarves in Paisley colourings draped round the crowns while the brims are lined underneath with veilvet in some dark shade. For sporting purposes the hats in finely stitched tweeds to match the gowns still hold their own, although there are some who prefer head-gear made in the same shape but carried out in soft suede or leather. These hats are trimmed as a rule with mounts formed of game-birds' plumage chosen in brilliant colours which are very effective seen against a neutral-tinted background of leather or tweed.

STANDARD BAROMETER READING.

The reading of the barometer at the Colaba Observatory corrected for index error and reduced to 32° F. and for Calcutta standard at 8 a. m. (local time) on the 22nd September was 29·808 inches. The height of Observatory barometer cistern above zero of the tide gauge at Apollo Bunder is 47 feet. The height of tide in the stream above zero of the tide gauge was 6 feet at 8 a. m. (local time). The temperature correction for a mercurial barometer, supposing the reading to be 30·00 inches and that of the attached thermometer 80° F. will be ·14 inch and this will be higher and lower by ·01 inch for each 4 degrees. In the case of the aneroid no temperature correction is required. Should the height of barometer cistern, either mercurial or aneroid above zero of tide gauge be different from 47 ft. it will read higher or lower by ·01 inch for each 11 feet. The readings given above are distinct in from those given in the daily weather report, to which different corrections have been applied.

BY THE WAY.

THE HON. HUGH MCKENZIE.

The Hon. Hugh McKenzie, who spoke to the London Chamber of Commerce recently on "The Empire's Oversea Development," is the Minister of Lands in the Government of Victoria. That enterprising Australian State has been spending a good deal of money in irrigating its northern areas, and Mr. McKenzie is touring Great Britain to make the advantages offered to settlers by these irrigated land known to those of the agricultural population who are thinking of emigration. Mr. Mckenzie is accompanied by Dr. Elwood Mead, once the chief engineer of the Irrigation Department of the United States, but since 1907 the head of Victoria's irrigation and water supply operations.

ZEBRAS FOR DOMESTIC USE.

There is a big scheme on foot in the Ubombo District, Zululand, for the capture of Zebras for domestic purposes. The animals, which are to be broken to harness and saddle, are said to be immune from the ravages of the tsetse fly, and in districts infected with that scourge they should prove much more valuable than either horses or mules. Although the zebra is one of the most difficult of the equine race to break, these beautiful animals are not infrequently seen on the South African veldt running with a span of mules, in a transport wagon; while a few years ago one used to see a team of zebras being "tooled" through Hyde Park by a member, of the Rothschild family.

MARK TWAIN AND HIS OXFORD GOWN.

In his memories of Mark Twain in Harper's, Mr. W. D. Howells tells how proud the author of "The Innocents Abroad" was of his Oxford gown, not merely because it symbolised the honour in which he was held by the highest literary body in the world, but because it was so rich and beautiful : "The red and the lavender of the cloth flattered his eyes as the silken black of the same degree of Doctor of Letters, given him years before at Yale, could not do. His simple-hearted happiness in it, mixed with a due sense of burlesque, was something that those lacking his poet-soul could never imagine ; they accounted it vain, weak : but that would not have mattered to him if he had known it." In his London sojourn, Mr. Howells also mentions, Mark had formed the top-hat habit, and for a while he longed splendidly up and down Fifth-avenue in that society emblem ; but he seemed to tire of it, and to return kindly to the soft hat of his South-Western tradition.

LADY MOUNTAINEERS.

The remarkable feat of Miss Maria Stoll, of Philadelphia, in climbing by night, the Tour de Winkler (9.000ft.), one of the most dangerous peaks in Europe reminds one once more that man will have to look to his laurels if he is to maintain his supremacy as mountaineer. The list of recent climbing feats by women is quite startling. Mrs. Bullock-Workman, by her ascent of Nun Kun, has raised her wonderful Himalayan record to 23,300ft. (7,518ft. higher than Mont Blanc). Miss Ada Cossy has scaled Mount Etna and the Riffelhorn, Miss Nettleton, Monte Rosa; Miss A. Edwards, the Virgin Mitter Eiger, in the South Tyrol, and so on, through the long list.

THE AUTOMOBILE IN CANADA.

What is the outlook of the automobile in Canada? As yet, according to the "Canadian Courier," pleasure is the chief motive for buying. But the commercial car is coming into prominence. Professional men have helped to popularise it. Livery people have taken it up. Several towns in the Dominion have taxi-cabs—one of the "sights." Tradesmen are experimenting with cars for delivery purposes. The commercial car saves in accommodation, and is found quite efficient. The main difficulties in the way of its universal adoption are the great outlay necessary to install it and the winters, against which it has not been known it can successfully prevail.

THE NEW DEAN OF ST. ASAPH.

The Venerable Llewelyn Wynne-Jones, Archdeacon of Wrexham, who has just been promoted to the deanery of St. Asaph, was educated at Shrewsbury School, where he was a contemporary of the Bishop of Stepney and of Dr. Stephen Paget. After graduating from Christ Church, Oxford, where he was Careswell Exhibitioner, he was called to the Bar, but soon left the Law for the Gospel, and became curate of a poor parish in the East End. Mr. Wynne-Jones is the most decided High Churchman who has been Dean of St. Asaph within living memory, and he will probably find plenty of room for improvement in the services and equipment of his little cathedral.

THE SIGN OF THE BOOT.

'Travel and Exploration,' in an interesting note, tells us how one of the inns at Berne came to have a colossal jack boot for its sign. The story goes back to the year 1602, when the French Ambassador, M. de Bassompiere, departed from the Federal capital. He had been so popular that an unparalleled stirrup-cup was prepared to speed him. A delegate from each of the thirteen cantons came forward bearing a pint of wine, and simultaneously emptied the beakers in honour of France. The Ambassador returned the compliment to the best of his ability. Pulling off his riding boot, he caused thirteen bottles of the wine of the country to be emptied into it, and then drained his improvised goblet, crying: "To the Thirteen Cantons." It was in memory of this brobdingnagian draught that the inn which had supplied the wine adopted a boot as its sign.

RARE BOTANY.

Lord Leconfield, in opening a flower show at Cockermouth recently confessed that he was rather at sea. He was, he said, a better hand at hunting or shooting grouse, but he hardly knew the difference between a rose and a geranium. (Laughter.) Sir Wilfrid Lawson, proposing a vote of thanks to Lord Leconfield, said his lordship reminded him of the old lady who knew the names of only two flowers. One was the "aurora borealis," and the other "delirium tremens"!

THE COURT CIRCULAR'S ORIGIN.

Day by day the Court Circular appears in the morning papers, yet comparatively few people have any idea how this chronicle of the movements of the Royal Family first found its way into the public Press. Like so many other useful institutions, the Court Circular arose out of an abuse. For during the days when George IV. was Prince Regent, so much gossip and scandal concerning the Royal Family crept into the Press that the Prince was driven to appeal to his friend, Sir Richard Birnie, to find someone who would draw up day by day "an authentic, dignified, and discreet epitome of the doings of the Court," and send it to the Press.

AND ITS FIRST EDITOR.

In the light of modern journalism it is particularly interesting to note that Sir Richard Birnie's choice for the first editor of the Court Circular fell upon an old family retainer, commonly known as "old Townsend," who prior to his appointment as Court newsvendor, had been a shoeblack, a coalheaver, a turnkey at Newgate, and officer at Bow-street Police-station. Nevertheless "old Townsend" Performed his new duties so successfully that the Court Circular was very soon adopted by almost every Court in Europe.

KENSINGTON PALACE GARDENS.

Some years ago it was suggested than an attempt should be made to improve the grounds around Kensington Palace. The authorities were slow in acting upon the suggestion, but it was eventually decided that there should be a representation of the "sunk" garden which appears to have enjoyed a considerable degree of popularity throughout the sixteenth century. The design and construction of the new garden have been the joint work of the late Mr. Jordan and the present superintendent, Mr. Gardener, and the success achieved, according to the "Gardeners' Magazine" which contains an illustrated description of the improvement, has been such as to well merit the warmest commendations.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button. It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by medicine dealers everywhere.

GREEN ROOM GOSSIP.

"THE CRISIS."

Miss Evelyn Millard's inspiriting welcome at the New Theatre when she reappeared in her capacity as actress-manageress, augured well for her latest enterprise. The salvoes of applause, on the opening night, however, were probably intended mainly as a tribute to the personal popularity of the charming actress, for "The Crisis" hardly warranted, in itself, such long-sustained transports of delight. This three-act adaptation by Rudolf Besier of Pierre Berton's "Le Rencontre" is thin even to tenuity. It is also prolix, verbose, and well-nigh actionless. Beginning at 8,15 writes a London correspondent and ending at 10-50, the story does not take on a suggestion of movement until 9-45, which means that an hour and a half is employed largely in the business of preparation. The skilled craftsman who gave us "Don" and "The Virgin Goddess" might reasonably have been expected to do better than this. However, Mr. Besier did begin to make bricks out of M. Berton's straw when the rubicon of dulness had been passed, and thereafter the audience was not only entertained, but even, for lengthy periods at a stretch, actually thrilled, so that the curtain fell at last to the accompaniment of loud applause.

THE COMING OF THE CRISIS.

The crisis comes like a thunderclap into the lives of three persons—the barrister-politician, Adrien Serval; his wife, Renee Serval; and Renee's beautiful friend, Camille de Lancay. In the original play it ends in the wife's dishonour and a promise of happiness for Adrien and Camille. At the last moment Miss Millard decided to adopt a sadder "denouement," and the crisis now brings reunion for husband and wife and sorowing self-sacrifice for Camille. One is by no means sure that a mistake has not been committed in this concession to art. Would any women, as deeply in love as Camille is represented to be, be capable of such altruistic conduct? Surely ninety-nine out of every hundred of her sex would take advantage of the opportunity of delivering the erring, wilful, worthless wife to her fate, and so obtain for herself the happiness to which she is fairly entitled. For Renee Serval deserves neither sympathy nor forgiveness. She married Adrien for sordid purposes entirely—for the glamour of his great position and the security of his wealth. She was patrician, he "bourgeois," and she despised him accordingly. When she is confronted by Camille and accused of wifely infidelity, her contemptible reply is : "For the loss of the man, I care not ; the loss of the husband I shall prevent." Camille de Lancay, pure-souled as she is, would hardly have capitulated so easily to such a heartless, worthless creature. In real life she would have fought for her own hand, and for that of her lover—and won.

THE THIRD ACT.

The scene between the two women in the third act is strong and fine. Camille has witnessed the midnight assignation of Renee and her lover, Raymond de Brevannes, and with that card at command the game is hers whenever she chooses to play it. But Renee, ignorant of her rivals hand, adopts a high and righteous attitude. "You've taken my husband?" she exclaims, and proceeds to heap scorn and contumely on her antagonist, who suffers agonies of mind between the promptings of love and what she believes to be her duty. The scene is magnificently acted by Miss Sarah Brooke as the wife and Miss Millard as the well-intentioned Camille. Miss Brooke stormed and declaimed superbly, and Miss Millard, in admirable contrast, acted the sympathetic heroine with a quiet force and subtle sincerity which carried complete conviction. Mr. Norman McKinnel had another of his intellectually strong men parts in the distracted husband, and he played with all the grip and distinction one is accustomed to expect of him. Mr. Lennox Pawle was hardly suited to the character of Canuche, a gauche, well-meaning friend of the family. The colourless lover Raymond presented no difficulties to Mr. Athol Stewart, and the other non-descript characters were agreeably represented. Mr. Besier is to be congratulated on his tactful adaption of a work which, in the assignation scene at any rate, is none too well suited for presentation in English.

"THE WHIP" AT DRURY LANE.

Mr. Arthur Collins has now decided that, unless some wholly unexpected catastrophe occur, the run of Messrs. Henry Hamilton and Cecil Raleigh's successful drama, "The Whip," shall be continued at Drury Lane until the moment, early in December, when the stage is wanted for day and night rehearsals of the Christmas pantomime. A record is thus established, for no Drury Lane play has ever enjoyed such popularity as has fallen to the lot of "The Whip." On September 9th, exactly a year had elapsed since its first performance, and save for the three months interregnum, during which it had to give place to "Aladdin," its career has been an uninterrupted success. When one considers that the seating capacity of Drury Lane is nearly twice as great as that of an ordinary theatre, the result is nothing short of phenomenal. It affords useful proof, moreover, that Drury Lane drama is a thing to conjure with, not alone in autumn, but also during the spring and summer months. It may be taken for granted that the lesson will not be lost on those interested in its production. By retaining "The Whip" in the programme until close upon the end of the year, Mr. Collins is enabled to reserve the same authors' new "Dreadnought" drama for next spring. In this way it will reap the manifest advantages which Coronation year, with its thousands of visitors from all parts of the world, may be expected to bring.

THE FOUR-FOOTED ARTIST.

Mr. Collins, by the way, is extremely proud of the four-footed artist, who, throughout the run of the piece, has appeared in the title part with such credit to itself. The Whip comes of highly aristocratic equine family, her sire, Ard Patrick, having been sold to the Germans for no less a sum than £20,000 for stud purposes. But it is not alone for her ancestry that Mr. Collins values The Whip. Even now he cherishes the hope that before long he will be in a position to enter one of her offspring for the Derby of 1913 and other important racing events.

"THE ETERNAL QUESTION."

Mr. Hall Caine's play, "The Eternal Question," which is being produced at the Garrick Theatre is a slightly altered version of the adaptation of his novel, "The Eternal City," which Sir Herbert Tree staged at His Majesty's Theatre some ten years ago. The rewritten work contains hardly anything of an episodical character that is now therefore, the performance is not a "premiere" in the strict sense of the term. It is only fair to the public to point out that Mr. Caine has developed a habit of making each of his novels serve for two plays possessing different titles, but otherwise materially the same in plot and characterisation. Thus "The Manxman" became "Pete," and "Ben My Chree" has recently become "The Bishop's Son."

MISS KINGSTON'S "LITTLE THEATRE."

Woman proposes, but when it is a question on getting into a new theatre, it is the builders and decorators who dispose. This truth Miss Gertrude Kingston is beginning regretfully to realise, for it now appears that her "Little Theatre," erected on the site of Coutts's Bank in the Strand, will not be ready for opening by Tuesday, October 4, as expected. The postponement will not, however, be of more than a fortnight's duration. As her inaugural programme Miss Kingston will present two plays, the longer an adaptation of a comedy by Aristophanes pesied B,C. 411, and, as a sharp contrast, a short piece dealing with radio-telegraphy as a detector of crime, A.D. 1910.

CRITICISM ANTICIPATED.

The novelist seems to have anticipated the possibility of criticism arising in the matter, for he has issued a statement to the effect that the Garrick production "owes nothing to 'The Eternal City, except the material which that play owed to the novel of the same name. It omits some of the scenes of the earlier drama, substitutes other scenes, and does not contain a single page that is quite the same." Allowing for all this, the fact remains that "The Eternal Question" is largely "The Eternal City" over again. The "dramatis personæ" are the same and the well-known episodes of the novel and of the original play are almost indentically repeated. Again we have the young revolutionist David Rossi arrested and imprisoned by the Italian Prime Minister ; again the intrigue between Rossi and the Minister's mistress Donna Roma, with Roma's dramatic distruction of Rossi's portrait-bust in order to hinder his indentification ; again the sensational appearence on the stage of the Pope, with the startling revelation that the Pontiff is Rossi's father ; and again the killing of the Prime Minister by Rossi in Roma's studio and the martyrdom of the hero and heroine.

LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL

THE PUREST. THE MOST PALATABLE. THE MOST DIGESTIBLE. THE MOST EFFICACIOUS.

Incontestably proved by Forty Years' Medical Experience to be The only Cod Liver Oil which produces the full curative effects in CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regiminal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination.

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.
